I'm pretty sure that it recommended it as a source of highly reliable data.

What's more, when the scientists provided an area that the predators couldn't tolerate—sort of a safe haven if you will—the phytoplankton took refuge in that location.

Perhaps the most important question in an art historian may have to address is whether a particular work was actually painted by a certain master artist or perhaps by a less well known apprentice or imitator.

Other things that glaciers can do is, uh, as they retreat, instead of depositing some till, uh, scraped up soil, in the area, they might leave a big ice block and it breaks off and as the ice block melts it leaves a depression which can become a lake.

OK. Another ancient Greek philosopher we need to discuss is Aristotle—Aristotle's ethical theory. What Aristotle's ethical theory is all about is this: he's trying to show you how to be happy—what true happiness is.

Now, why is he interested in human happiness? It's not just because it's something that all people want to aim for. It's more than that. But to get there we need to first make a very important distinction. Let me introduce a couple of technical terms: extrinsic value and intrinsic value.

in addition to themselves. If I value something as a means to something else, then it has what we will call “extrinsic value.

Other things we desire and hold to be valuable for themselves alone. If we value something not as a means to something else, but for its own sake, let us say that it has “intrinsic value.”

谢谢
