The graph below shows the number of people at a London underground station from 6:00 to 22:00.

Write a report for a university lecturer describing the information shown below.

You should write at least 150 words.

The line graph describes the number of people using a London underground station over 16 hours (6am to 10pm).

We can see from the line graph that at 6am the number of people at the station rises sharply from 6am to 8am, peaking at 400. Then there is a drastic drop in the number over the next two hours. The period from 10am to 12pm witnesses a moderate growth in the number of people in the station. There is little change in the number from 12pm to 2pm. Then the number decreases rapidly from 2pm to 4pm and it reaches its bottom at 100. It can be seen from the table that the number rises dramatically from 4pm to 6pm, but it decreases drastically until

8pm. The period from 8pm to 9pm experiences a slight rise in the number, and then it declines from 180 at 9pm to 135 at 10pm.

Most popular countries visited by UK residents 1999

The graphs show the information about travel to and from UK and the most popular countries visited by UK residents in 1999.

We can see from the line graph that there was a slight increase in the number of visits abroad by UK residents from 12 million in 1979 to 20 million in 1985. However, after that, the number rose sharply until 1999, peaking at a little over 50 million. The 20 years witnessed a moderate growth in the number of visits to UK by overseas residents. From 1979 to 1999, the number of visits abroad was larger than that of visits to UK.

It can be seen from the bar chart that France had the highest number among the five countries in 1999. Although the number of USA was much smaller than that of Spain, it was slightly larger than that of Greece. Turkey was the least popular country for

UK residents among the five countries.
