Buildings

What are the differences between old buildings and modern buildings?

In terms of the height, old buildings were all like four or five-storey tall; but modern buildings, especially those skyscrapers, are at least over 200 meters tall.

As far as the look is concerned, old buildings all looked pretty much the same; but most of the modern buildings have glass-wrapped French doors, which is quite eye-catching. They won by the fancy look.

Countryside changes

What are the changes happened in countryside (rural areas) in recent years?

Well, the changes are earth-shattering. For starters, the agricultural modernization has been developing at an extremely fast speed.

Besides, “agri-tainment”, as a new form of tourism, totally boosted the local economy, which made the local residents’ living standards improve a lot as well.

Weather

What are the differences of the climate between the north and the south?

Well, in north, four seasons are well-distinguished: scorching hot in summer while freezing cold in winter. Spring and autumn are so short that it goes by before you know it.

In south, four seasons are as warm as spring.

Daily routine

What is your daily routine?

My daily routine is stable and simple: basically, get up at 7 o'clock in the morning, grab something to eat, rush into the classroom to have lectures for like the whole morning and study at the library for another three to four hours, then you can spot me in my dormitory at 10 PM.

I know it sounds boring, but I think it is what it takes to nail IELTS and go abroad. I believe that everything I am doing right now will be paid off one day.

Do you want to do any adjustment to your daily routine?

Generally speaking, I am pretty happy with my daily routine right now. If I have to adjust it a little bit, I might get up half an hour earlier to go jogging; squeeze one hour after dinner to go to gym to work out. But it is always easier said than done, we will see how it will go.
